I send you herewith a revised draft of the Presidential Directive concerning entry of German specialists in science and technology. The revision covers the points desired by General Hilldring's office. For your information, Mr. Fry of the Department of Commerce told Mr. Bradford and me this morning that under the Commerce program no more than a dozen persons are expected to qualify for sponsorship and certainly that fifty would be the maximum. This would make our figure of 100 generous and an outside limit which might even be reduced by the actual number of applicants.

If you approve the draft with the explanatory note let me know so that I may then take the matter to Mr. Braden, Mr. Langer and General Hilldring, for interdepartmental action.
